Saturday night. London girls, aged nine and 11, lured into stranger's car, one sexually assaulted, cops say

mike.donachie@metronews.ca

London police are looking for a man accused of enticing two young girls into his car and sexually assaulting one of them.

The man is described as Asian, five-foot-eight with a medium build and between 30 and 40 years old.

He has short dark hair described as "spiked" on the top and a thin face. At the time of the Saturday incident, he was wearing a long-sleeved white dress shirt over a white sleeveless undershirt. His pants were beige.

The vehicle involved was a dark, newer-model, four-door sedan, with an antenna on the back. The interior is a mixture of black and white material, police said.

Police added the girls, aged nine and 11, were walking in the area of Southdale Road and Adelaide Street when the man, whom they didn't know, approached them about 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

Once the girls were in the vehicle, they were driven to Springbank Park, where they walked in the area of Storybook Gardens and the wading pool, police said Tuesday.

The man then drove the girls to a fast-food restaurant near Wellington and Commissioners roads, arriving at 9:50 p.m. and buying food for them. He then drove them back to Springbank Park where they ate.

After that, the man drove the girls back to the area where he first picked them up.

One was dropped off, and she walked home, arriving at 11:10 p.m., police said.

The other girl was driven to an unknown location, where she was allegedly sexually assaulted. She was then driven back to the area of Southdale and Adelaide and dropped off at about 11:40 p.m.

Both girls are now home with their parents, and neither sustained any physical injuries, police said.

"We have a team that's dedicated to this investigation," said London police spokesman Const. Ken Steeves.

"Our main concern is the safety of the community.

"That's one reason we're (making this public). Another is to identify the individual.

"So we're asking if anybody saw something or thought they saw something suspicious on the night, please give us a call."

Steeves also advised parents to talk to their children about how to stay safe and to warn them never to go with strangers.

Crown lawyers complete their case against the mayor

Trial. Defence cagey about whether mayor will take the stand

The Crown has completed its case in the trial of London Mayor Joe Fontana.

Lead Crown attorney Tim Zuber called his last witness Tuesday afternoon. The spot was reserved for the House of Commons' chief financial officer who told Superior Court Justice Bruce Thomas that he contacted the RCMP about a questionable expense claim after being tipped off by London media.

Fontana is charged with fraud under $5,000, breach of trust by a public official and uttering forged documents.

The charges are tied to a $1,700 cheque from Public Works Canada the Crown claims he was going to pocket to make up for a deposit paid on his son's Marconi Club wedding reception in June 2005.

Fontana, who was the MP for London North Centre at the time, argues the cheque was to cover an unrelated, and allowable, event at the same location.

Mark Watters, the House financial officer, noticed discrepancies between a contract Fontana's wife signed with the Marconi Club and the expense claim Fontana filed on an altered version of the same contract, the court heard.

The altered version had a date and name of the event involved changed.

That different date — Feb. 25, 2004 — may turn out to be one of the pillars of the defence team's case.

Lawyer Gord Cudmore contended in court that the year 2004 was an error and should have read 2005 because former Liberal MP Ralph Goodale was in London on Feb. 25, 2005.

Cudmore said the claim might have been for a reception Goodale attended.

Goodale's spokesman refused to confirm for Metro if the former finance minister was in London on the date, saying the matter is before the courts.

Earlier Tuesday, the Crown finished presenting a two-hour video recorded as RCMP Const. Shawn Devine interrogated Fontana on Nov. 21, 2012, the night the mayor turned himself in.

Devine asked Fontana what kind of legacy he would like to leave behind.

"You have to take a second and just take your time, and think about the legacy Joe Fontana wants to leave behind to his general public, his family, his friends, OK?" Devine said.

Instead, Fontana expressed his innocence and requested his lawyer.

The defence begins its case Wednesday. It's not known if Fontana will testify.

#Fontana hashtag draws rebuke from U.S. town

The trial of Joe Fontana has drawn a strange bedfellow.

Through the world of social media, the trial and a city in California, have been linked through the simple, yet perfect, hashtag #Fontana.

And the mayor of Fontana, Calif., is not happy.

"I mind a lot because we don't want to be associated with drama like that. We're trying to grow and be progressive," Acquanetta Warren said in a telephone interview with Metro.

Warren said she would prefer the hashtag continue to be associated with her city, about 50 miles outside of Los Angeles, and not for a fraud trial in a different country.

"Is that his last name?" she asked. "Wow! We're not having problems like that, thank God. Never heard of (the trial and London) before."

The only Joe Fontana she knew of was a musician.

"I think there is a singer with that name, but that's a new one," she said.

Well, he was actually a drummer and a good one, the drummer for Elvis Presley for 14 years. London's Fontana was also a drummer, albeit not for anyone of as high notoriety as the King.

The #Fontana hashtag has been used hundreds of times in the past two days, mostly from reporters sending bits and bites from the trial. One local columnist and journalism professor went so far as to send his regards to the California community on Tuesday.

"Apologies to the good citizens of #Fontana, California, for hijacking your hashtag," Larry Cornies wrote on Twitter.

Meanwhile, the City of Fontana, with a population of a little more than 200,000, celebrated its 100th anniversary one year ago.

Its biggest claim to fame is that the Hells Angels motorcycle club originated there.

"We don't have any problems with them. About 60 years ago we did, but now everything is fine," said Russell Ingold, editor of the Fontana Herald News. DAVE LANGFORD/METRO

#HashtagsAndHowToUseThem

- Use a hashtag carefully, advises Andrew Schiestel, president at London social media experts tdk Creative.
- The clickable search term is useful to link people, places and events on Twitter, Facebook and Pinterest.
- But using one too many can annoy people, Schiestel warned.
- Tweets should be relevant to the hashtag and, before you use one, it's a good idea to run a search to check it doesn't have two meanings. Like #Fontana.

Charity. Man sets off on two-day walk to bring attention to brain injuries

A London man has stepped off on a two-day walk in Port Stanley with the aim of raising awareness about brain injuries.

Mike Hamilton has been living with a brain injury since he was hit by a car at 12 years old.

The walk, which started Tuesday in downtown London, is his third. He started the tradition in 2012 to mark the 40th anniversary of his accident.

That year, he walked from London to Leamington and took the ferry to Pelee Island, the spot where he had his accident years ago.

Along with raising awareness, Hamilton is taking donations to benefit the Brain Injury Association of London and Region.

Rethink tour. Environmental campaigner taking to solar bike for journey

MIKE DONACHIE

An inspirational — and sustainable — journey is ahead for Stephen Szucs.

He's heading out in the world with a message: We can make sustainability easy, and we want one million people to agree.

Szucs is a leading figure in Sustainable Joes, the movement dedicated to using small lifestyle changes to make a big difference in the world.

Last year, the Londoner lived without power for three months to show it could be done. This year he's going further.

The environmental campaigner is heading out on a solar and pedal-powered trike on a tour he's calling Rethink.

It starts in London on June 14 — assuming the bike's batteries get through customs from the U.S. in time — and will take him to Key West, Fla., and, he hopes, beyond North America.

"I believe future generations deserve better," Szucs said.

He's expecting the journey to take three to six months, and the schedule is fluid.

Along the way, he'll detour to where people want him, finding friendly places and hosts to help him stage events where people pledge to act sustainably.

The eventual goal is one million voices.

"I believe that most people agree that we have to move in a sustainable direction, but they don't know what that might be."

Police cancel Port Stanley water search

Police have called off the search for a person reported missing Monday in Port Stanley after an "extensive search."

The search started after someone reported that a person had bypassed a security gate and walked onto the west pier.

The witness told authorities he watched the person and became concerned when he could no longer see them anymore.

He called police shortly before 6:30 p.m., but he indicated he never actually saw anyone go into the waters of Lake Erie.

Ontario Provincial Police, firefighters, a helicopter from Trenton and a coast-guard boat were dispatched, searching the water for about four hours.

Officers also canvassed the area and checked licence plates to look for abandoned vehicles.

The search resumed Tuesday morning.

"Since the initial report we have not received any new information or any reports of (a) missing or an overdue person," said Staff Sgt. Greg Dafoe, operations manager for Elgin County OPP.

"We have not received any leads to indicate someone had gone into the water or (was missing)." METRO

Combine some homemade scarves, the sport of rugby, a trip to Uganda and you have the life of Kellie Renwick in the foreseeable future.

Renwick, 23, of London, is part of the Gainline Africa team heading to Uganda on June 5. She will be there for two and a half weeks, and it will be her second trip there in three years.

Gainline Africa is a Canadian sports-for-development organization that uses rugby as a "tool for development" in Africa's post-conflict communities.

The infinity scarves come into play as she will be sewing 35 to 40 and selling them as part of the fundraising component of the trip. She must raise $1,500.

A graduate of Catholic Central and Western, she did not play rugby until university, where she played for head coach Natascha Wesch for three years.

"She was a kick in my ass," Renwick said, adding that's something all rugby players need to support each other.

Renwick said she will be going to Gulu, in northern Uganda, working with the Gulu Elephants rugby team and one of the seven high schools in the community.

"You could be dealing with players (at the high schools) who have no idea what the hell rugby is," Renwick said. "They're throwing it like a football. They're freaking out when they catch it or some people are into it right away."

While there, she will also be involved with a Rugby for Change program where she'll go to a Ugandan prison and teach inmates rugby.

"A lot of people have argued, 'Oh rugby, it's such a rough, terrible sport in such a post-conflict country. Why play such a violent sport?' You make it as violent as you want it to be. It's not about punching people in the face or cleating them," she said.

When the program is complete, Renwick plans to stay in Africa and travel with her boyfriend.

Trades body a self-serving Liberal creation: Hudak

Ontario's trades-regulating body is a job-killing bureaucracy that he would abolish immediately if elected premier June 12, Progressive Conservative Leader Tim Hudak said Tuesday.

Speaking in a hair salon east of Toronto, Hudak attacked the Ontario College of Trades as a self-serving creation of the Liberals to reward their union friends.

"We don't need an expensive government bureaucracy to tell people where to get their hair cut," Hudak said. "It's nothing more than a giveaway to the power brokers and union bosses."

Hudak did not say who would ensure tradespeople, such as bricklayers, carpenters or hazardous-materials workers, were in fact qualified to do their work in the absence of the college.

The college's CEO is Hudak's former Conservative cabinet colleague, David Tsubouchi, and its board chairman, Ron Johnson, is a former Tory politician who has called the PC leader's view of the college offensive.

On hand for Hudak's campaign event was Kailan Ambrose, 30, a seven-year hairdresser, who has failed six times to pass a college-mandated written test at $169 a shot because of a learning disability.

Tim Hudak THE CANADIAN PRESS

As a result, she could lose her licence, despite her customers' satisfaction.

"The college should be abolished, totally," Ambrose said. "They're ruining people's lives."

Ambrose, a mother of a three-year-old, called the prospect of losing her licence "frightening."

The college, which speaks for close to 160 different skilled trades including call-centre operators, cooks, electricians and bakers, is an industry-driven body designed to protect the public.

Like other self-regulating bodies, it certifies the qualifications of members, establishes apprenticeship programs and the scope of practice for trades.

At the moment, college membership is only mandatory for about 150,000 workers in 22 skilled trades that require certification.

The Liberals initially set up the college, with a budget of about $20 million a year, in the fall of 2009 following two in-depth reports on the regulation of skilled trades in the province.

It is run by a 21-member board of governors comprising employer and employee representatives.

Both the Liberals and New Democrats have defended it as necessary to ensure the safety of consumers, and argue it needs to be given time to see how well it functions.

Hudak calls the college a tax on those who use their hands, and said he would not replace it with another kind of regulatory body if he's elected June 12. THE CANADIAN PRESS

No merger. Liberals will keep school boards separate: Wynne

Ontario's Liberals won't merge the public and Catholic school systems as other provinces have done if they're re-elected June 12, Premier Kathleen Wynne said Tuesday.

The controversial issue came up after the Liberal candidate in Sudbury said he thinks amalgamation is a great idea.

"It's one of those ways to be more efficient and to save those tax dollars and make sure those dollars get to our children," Andrew Olivier said Monday in an all-candidates debate on CBC radio.

Olivier is entitled to his opinion, but it's not something her government will do, Wynne said from a school in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

"It is one of those things that becomes a distraction," said the Liberal leader, who is a former school board trustee and education minister.

"The fact is that we have a lot of work to do in the school system as it exists. There are a lot of improvements that we need to continue to make."

Opening up an unnecessary constitutional debate about merging school systems would get in the way of that work, Wynne added.

"I believe that the school system works the way it exists in Ontario. It's a fundamental part of our history," she said.

"And if we were creating a school system today in Ontario, we'd have a different discussion. But we're not. We have a school system that exists and it works and that's the school system that we'll support."

Neither the Progressive Conservatives nor the New Democrats have any new ideas for education, Wynne said.

Tory Leader Tim Hudak's plan to slash 100,000 public-sector jobs, including teachers, will spark the same kind of labour unrest and disruption that former Conservative premier Mike Harris created with his cuts to education, she added.

Wynne says Ontario's public sector would be "at least as big" after another four years of Liberal government as it is now, insisting she'll hire nurses and teachers and still eliminate the $12.5-billion deficit by 2017-18.

Parents grateful after spread of Amber Alert on social media leads online sleuths to help locate missing baby

The mother of a day-old infant snatched from a Quebec hospital says she’s grateful to everyone who helped bring home her baby — especially the group of people who used social media to hunt down the alleged kidnapper.

Police issued an Amber Alert on Monday night after the newborn was abducted from the mother’s hospital room in Trois-Rivières by a woman allegedly wearing scrubs and posing as a nurse.

The alert, which included a security-camera photo of the suspect and a description of her car, was splashed across mainstream and social media within minutes.

Four young locals wasted little time picking up the cause and guided police to the woman’s home, where officers found the baby safe three hours later. Police also arrested a woman in her early 20s in connection with the kidnapping.

“Every click, every share made the difference,” Melissa McMahon, the infant’s mother, wrote Tuesday in a post on her Facebook page.

“Four marvellous people, whom we had the chance to meet, identified this woman thanks to Facebook … We felt a huge amount of support from the public. This victory is for you, too!!!”

The online detectives who helped find baby Victoria were identified as Charlene Plante, Marc-Andre Cote, Sharelle Bergeron and Melizanne Bergeron.

Melizanne Bergeron told reporters Tuesday in Trois-Rivières that she came across the information about the kidnapping on Facebook and showed the photo of the suspect to her friend Plante, who realized the woman was her neighbour.

She said they spotted the vehicle described in the alert parked outside the building, saw signs that someone was inside and called police. Officers, she added, arrived on the scene quickly and broke down the woman’s door.

“Thirty seconds after, the baby was in the hands of the police,” said Melizanne Bergeron, who touched Victoria as the officer cradling her walked past. “It was the best moment in my life. We were crying.”

Ex-cop opens Winnipeg’s first marijuana café

A former Winnipeg police officer who’s advocated for the legalization of drugs since hanging up the badge has opened the city’s first marijuana café.

Bill Vandergraaf told Metro he wants to give those, like himself, who are prescribed marijuana for medical reasons a “peaceful place” to meet, smoke and exchange ideas.

“It has great medicinal value for all kinds of ailments, and it’s time to stop criminalizing people,” explained the 29-year veteran of the Winnipeg Police Service, who opened the café, Vapes on Main, two weeks ago. “It’s time to make our streets safer by ending prohibition of marijuana and drugs.”

Vandergraaf retired from policing in 2001 and said he’s been using medical marijuana to combat the depression, anxiety and alcoholism he picked up during the job since 2007.

“We are doing nothing wrong, we are not hurting anybody else,” he said, noting his late father found relief from Lou Gehrig’s disease through pot-laced cookies, and his daughter uses medical marijuana to ease the pain of Takayasu’s arteritis. “We are providing ourselves and our families with what we believe to be the most effective medicine available today outside of a pharmacy.”

Top brass says sexual harassment not a part of military culture

Commons defence committee. Commander grilled after damning magazine story says assault at epidemic level

The country's top military commander has been called on the parliamentary carpet to answer questions about reports of sexual violence in the military.

Gen. Tom Lawson, the chief of defence staff, was grilled Tuesday by the Commons defence committee about a recent magazine report that claimed sex assaults within the ranks are at an epidemic level.

The story, published by Maclean's and L'actualité magazines, interviewed several victims and examined a decade's worth of statistics documenting reported attacks.

Lawson told the committee he found the allegations disturbing, and acknowledged the courage of those victims who spoke out.

An internal review carried out since the claims were first reported last month has identified "some barriers" that prevent alleged victims from coming forward, he testified.

Lawson said an independent review from outside the military is being organized, one that will have the authority to interview military members and could potentially uncover fresh allegations of assault.

The exposé

The magazine story said military police get as many as 200 complaints of sexual assault each year, with many more cases going unreported by victims who fear the potential consequences from within the military hierarchy.

But he said he does not accept the notion that sexual violence and harassment are part of military culture, citing a recent internal survey that suggested harassment of all kinds has been declining steadily over the last decade.

Lawson said only a small percentage of those who took part in the 2012 survey said they've faced harassment, but he conceded the numbers are higher when the results are parsed by gender.

"I think there is an under-reporting going on," Lawson said, "and we need to do everything we can to deal with any issues that stand in the way of someone coming forward."

But defence critic Jack Harris didn't buy those assurances, saying that the issue has resurfaced time and again since a similar media exposé was written in the late 1990s.

"As a Canadian I'm more than concerned and disturbed," said Harris. National Defence is three years behind in reporting criminal statistics within the military to Parliament, he added.

Donetsk mayor says dozens killed in fighting; rebels claim up to 100

The eastern city of Donetsk was in turmoil Tuesday a day after government forces used fighter jets to stop pro-Russia separatists from taking over the airport. Dozens were reported killed and the mayor went on television to urge residents to stay indoors.

The city of one million was engulfed by fighting Monday when rebels moved to seize the airport, Ukraine's second-largest. They were repelled by government forces using combat jets and helicopter gunships. Associated Press journalists witnessed intensive gunfire throughout the day and into the night. Plumes of black smoke rose into the air and officials shut down Donetsk airport and nearby streets to traffic amid the fighting.

Donetsk mayor Oleksandr Lukyanchenko said 40 people, including two civilians, were killed in Monday's fighting. Rebel leaders, meanwhile, said the deaths could reach up to 100.

The battles came as billionaire candy magnate Petro Poroshenko claimed victory in Sunday's presidential vote, which authorities in Kyiv had hoped would unify the deeply divided nation. Poroshenko, who has yet to be sworn in, has vowed to negotiate a peaceful end to the insurgency in the east, but also has called the separatists "Somali pirates" and promised he would stop them from sowing more chaos.

The bodies of about 30 insurgents were brought Tuesday to a hospital morgue in Donetsk, said Leonid Baranov of the separatist Donetsk People's Republic, who was at the Kalinin morgue. The fighters had been wounded and were being transported to a hospital in a truck when it was shot up by government forces, Baranov said.

Baranov said up to 100 rebels were probably killed in Monday's fighting, adding that many bodies had not been recovered because they were in areas under government control.

90% drop in cases. B.C. hospital no longer needs dedicated AIDS ward

A Vancouver hospital ward once so stigmatized it was only referred to by code name is shedding its past thanks to a steady reduction of AIDS cases.

B.C. Premier Christy Clark has announced "Ward 10C" at St. Paul's Hospital will no longer be dedicated to the disease because it's not needed.

She says the ward is being repurposed from a place where patients went expecting to die to a treatment centre for a chronic, manageable, long-term illness.

Clark credits the success to a made-in-B.C. treatment and prevention program and the pioneering work of the BC Centre for Excellence in HIV/AIDS.

United Nations under-secretary for UNAIDS Michel Sidibé says the ward's transformation is a "defining moment" that should inspire global communities to start thinking about ending AIDS altogether.

There's been a 90 per cent drop in AIDS cases in B.C. since 1995 and an 80 per cent decrease in HIV-related mortality between 1996 and 2012.

Pregnant woman stoned to death

'Honour killing.' 20 members of woman's family attack couple outside court in Lahore

A pregnant woman was stoned to death by her own family in front of a Pakistani high court on Tuesday for marrying the man she loved.

Nearly 20 members of the woman's family, including her father and brothers, attacked her and her husband with batons and bricks in broad daylight before a crowd of onlookers outside the high court of Lahore, police investigator Rana Mujahid said.

Hundreds of women are murdered every year in Muslim-majority Pakistan in so-called "honour killings" carried out by husbands or relatives as a punishment for alleged adultery or other illicit sexual behaviour, but public stoning is extremely rare.

Mujahid said the woman's father has been arrested for murder and that police were working to apprehend all those who participated in the "heinous crime."

Another officer identified the slain woman as Farzana Parveen, 25, and said she had married Mohammad Iqbal against her family's wishes.

Her father, Mohammad Azeem, had filed an abduction case against Iqbal, which the couple was contesting, her lawyer Mustafa Kharal said. He confirmed that she was three months' pregnant.

Flood reveals human remains

Last week's record flooding in Bosnia has uncovered human remains experts believe belong to people who went missing during the country's 1992-95 war.

Lejla Cengic of Bosnia's Institute for Missing Persons said Tuesday that teams fixing power lines discovered the remains near the northern town of Doboj. Nearly 30,000 people went missing during the Yugoslav wars of the 1990s. One-third of them have been found in mass graves, mostly in Bosnia. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Obama's plan. 9,800 troops to remain after war ends in Afghanistan

President Barack Obama will seek to keep 9,800 U.S. troops in Afghanistan after the war formally ends later this year and then will withdraw most of those forces by 2016, senior administration officials said Tuesday.

Obama's decision is largely in line with what military commanders have been seeking and will allow the president to fully end the American-led military effort by the time he leaves office.

The two-year plan is contingent on the Afghan government signing a bilateral security agreement with the U.S. While current Afghan President Hamid Karzai has declined to sign the agreement, U.S. officials are confident that either of the candidates seeking to replace him would approve it.

The plan calls for the U.S. military to draw down from its current force of 32,000 to 9,800 by the start of next year. Those troops would be dispatched throughout Afghanistan and focus on counterterrorism missions and training Afghan security forces.

Dream of owning a home? Keep dreaming

RBC study. Home ownership is seeming more like a fantasy as the reality of high prices and interest rates hits home

It's becoming increasingly difficult for families to own a home in Canada and affordability is only expected to get worse going forward, according to the Royal Bank of Canada.

With house prices continuing to rise, RBC said its affordability index deteriorated in the first quarter of this year — the third quarter that has happened out of the last four — with the deterioration particularly acute in the hot markets of Toronto, Calgary and Vancouver.

And RBC chief economist Craig Wright says keeping up with the cost of home ownership in the future is likely going to be an even bigger stretch for households.

"If prices continue to accelerate in key Canadian markets in the near term, affordability could come under pressure," the report points out.

"The eventual normalization of monetary policy (interest rates) will lead to substantial increases in interest rates over the medium term, which could be too much for other affordability determinants to counteract," it adds.

The affordability index measures the percentage of pre-tax household income that is needed to service the cost of owning a home at current market prices, including payments for a mortgage, utilities and property taxes. A reading of 50 per cent means service costs swallow up half of a household's pre-tax income.

Home! Sweet (pricey) home!

Nationally, the index rose by 0.1 points to 43.2 per cent for detached bungalows and 0.3 points to 49.0 per cent for two-storey homes, while the measure for condos dipped 0.1 points to 27.9 per cent.

- In Ontario as a whole, the affordability measure of 44.9 per cent for bungalows and 51.0 for two-storey homes represented a 24-year high.

WORKPLACE GIVERS GET ALL THE LOVE

JUST SAYIN'

Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca

Never mind butcher, baker, or candlestick maker.

The people who float your workplace boat these days are takers, matchers and givers, according to a rising star in workaday psychology, Adam Grant, the youngest full professor at the Wharton School.

This guy is only 32, but he's already figured out how to navigate the concrete jungle and has written a New York Times bestseller about it, called, naturally, Give and Take. He's also the subject of a recent article in Slate.

Even though Grant has the fast-track record we usually associate with a taker — those Gordon-Gecko-Greed-Is-Good types so familiar in the mythology of Corporate America — he tries to be a giver, not just because his research shows that nice guys (and girls) can finish first.

Givers are defined by the fact that they will take care of other people with no expectation of reward. They do it precisely because they are selfless. So you can't game the give.

Most of us are matchers in the middle — I'll scratch your back with the understanding that you, at some point very soon, will scratch mine. Other people respect the matcher ethos, but no one actually loves a matcher, unless it's the matcher's mother, who is, by nature, a giver.

All the love is reserved for givers. Givers sow the seeds of harmony wherever they go. People want to work with them because they trust them ... and know they'll share the glory and take the blame.

Do you know anybody like that? If you do, you probably follow them around with big puppy eyes.

Takers are toxic. Grant says it's a good idea to keep a wooden stake, silver bullet and string of garlic handy to ward them off. Well, he doesn't put it in precisely those terms, but he does say that the negative impact of a taker can be three times that of the positive impact of a giver.

They suck the lifeblood out of an organization.

There is an easy way to spot a taker and it's not only because he or she doesn't drink ... wine. "The main sign that someone's a taker is kissing up and kicking down," he writes.

Just because you're a giver doesn't mean you put a Kick Me sign on your back before you go to work in the morning. Winning givers don't allow themselves to be kicked or stepped on; they don't overdo the giving to the detriment of their own work, and they give on a smartly scheduled basis as opposed to on impulse or whim.

Whatever you think (stop rolling your eyes), I think it's good to have permission to be a nice person. It's ironic to discover that while we've spent our lives learning to eat other dogs, happiness is a warm puppy.

And if you're a little bit good at being good, the rewards will come in your lifetime. Good dog!

Art that's worth crying over

'Aerial view of my emotions'

ROSE-LYNN FISHER
Artist-photographer based in Los Angeles

What inspired you to turn human tears into art?
One day I was crying but stopped and wondered if my tears of grief would look any different from tears of happiness. When I magnified them on a microscope, what I saw evoked a sense of place, like an aerial view of my emotional terrain. I was so intrigued by this that I started a project, which now comprises 100 of my own and others' tears.

How did you go about photographing the tears?
I collect a tear, put it onto a glass slide and view it through a standard microscope, magnified 10 to 40 times. After the tear sample has been either air-dried or covered, I photograph it using a digital microscopy camera.

They do look like strange landscapes.
Exactly. I marvel at the visual similarities between the microscopic world and the macro world of landscapes. Patterns of erosion etched into the earth over millions of years can look like the branched crystalline patterns of an evaporated tear that formed in less than a minute.

Worth mentioning. USDA projects to help protect soil, water quality

The U.S. Department of Agriculture is teaming with businesses, non-profits and others on a five-year, $2.4-billion program that will fund locally designed soil and water conservation projects nationwide, Secretary Tom Vilsack said Tuesday.

Authorized by the new farm law enacted earlier this year, the Regional Conservation Partnership Program is intended to involve the private sector more directly in planning and funding environmental protection initiatives tied to agriculture.

He described the projects to be funded as "clean water startup operations" that will benefit communities and watersheds, a departure from the department's more traditional approach of focusing on individual operators adopting practices such as no-till cultivation or planting buffer strips to prevent runoff into streams.

Quoted

"It's a new approach to conservation that is really going to encourage people to think in very innovative and creative ways."
Secretary Tom Vilsack

Universities, local and tribal governments, companies and sporting groups are among those eligible to devise plans and seek grants.

"By establishing new public-private partnerships, we can have an impact that's well beyond what the federal government could accomplish on its own," Vilsack said. "These efforts keep our land resilient and water clean, and promote tremendous economic growth in agriculture, construction, tourism and outdoor recreation and other industries."

In addition to protecting the environment, the projects will bolster the rural economy by supporting tourism and outdoor recreation jobs while avoiding pollution that would cost more to clean up, he said.

The USDA will spend $1.2 billion — including $400 million the first year — and raise an equal amount from participants. Successful applications will include offers of cash, labour or other contributions, as well as plans for achieving measurable solutions and using new approaches, said Jason Weller, chief of the Natural Resources Conservation Service. # Disney has its wicked ways

Bold child's play

Angelina Jolie all in as villain

Angelina Jolie taking on the title role in Maleficent, telling the story of Sleeping Beauty from the villain's perspective, might have seemed like a no-brainer, but Jolie herself had her doubts. "I was a bit nervous to take her on. I don't have a big theatre voice. I don't do things that are kind of comedic. This is such a crazy idea. I'm a fairy? 'How was your day, honey?' 'I was a fairy,'" Jolie remembers telling husband Brad Pitt. "I was so challenged by it. For me as an actress to do something where I'm not taking myself so seriously or doing it for myself or doing it for art — just to remember what it is to play and entertain and try something bold."

But once she had the horns and the headdress and the augmented cheekbones and nose in place, she just went with it. "There's no halfway. If you're going to do it, you can't just kind of do it. You have to go fully into it and enjoy it," she says. "The original was done so well and her voice was so great. The way she was animated was so perfect. If anything, I was worried I'd fail the original. I practised a lot with my children. When I got them laughing, I figured I was on to something — well, they laughed, they cried." ## It's not all Mouse ears. Disney horns in on the dark side of fairy tales from the winged demon of Fantasia to Maleficent

IN FOCUS
scene@metronews.ca

Hear the name Disney, and your first thoughts are likely about Mickey Mouse ears, Mary Poppins or the song Let it Go. Uplifting notions born from a company that brags it owns the Happiest Place on Earth.

But for all the cheery feelings the Mouse House has given us over the years, Disney villains have also inspired a nightmare or two.

This weekend, Maleficent creeps into theatres. Starring Angelina Jolie, it is the story of how the Sleeping Beauty villainess became evil after being betrayed by a child. With plumped up cheekbones and headgear with demonic horns, Jolie looks like something from a hellish Hieronymus Bosch painting.

"She isn't the pretty princess," says the actress. "She isn't a beautiful queen. She's a very awkward, pointy, slightly scary-looking horned creature who goes through a lot in her life."

Maleficent joins a long list of dastardly Disney villains to inspire sleepless nights.

Scar

In The Lion King, Scar (voice of Jeremy Irons) is the brother of the king, Mufasa (James Earl Jones). In a Shakespearean twist, Scar murders his brother and banishes his nephew to gain control of Pride Rock.

Most evil line? "Long live the King." — Scar to Mufasa before killing him.

Cruella De Vil

In the 1961 animated film and the 1996 live-action film, 101 Dalmatians, Cruella De Vil (voice of Betty Lou Gerson in the cartoon, Glenn Close in the flesh) is a diabolical fashionista who wants to incorporate puppy pelts into her wardrobe.

Most evil line? "Darling, I live for fur. I worship fur!"

Queen Grimhilde

Vanity pushes Queen Grimhilde (Lucille La Verne in the 1937 animated version) to try and destroy the life of her stepdaughter (Adriana Caselotti) in Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs. The evil queen can't bear the thought that there is someone more beautiful than she, so she first orders her huntsman to kill Snow White and cut her heart out and when that doesn't work, she feeds the pretty girl a poisoned apple.

Most evil line? "Mirror, Mirror on the wall, who's the fairest of them all?"

Chernabog

Hands down, the scariest vision in any Disney film has to be Chernabog, the winged demon who briefly appears in the Night on Bald Mountain sequence of Fantasia. He is the essence of evil and according to Villians Wiki, his hobby is bringing the dead back to life so he can kill them again.

Discussing the character in an interview, Walt Disney referred to him as Satan.

Most evil line? Chernabog doesn't have any lines. When you're this bad, you don't need dialogue.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

Harry Styles ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Kendall just can't get over Harry Styles

Well, this is awkward. While Harry Styles and Kendall Jenner's brief romance has been over for months, Jenner reportedly "just can't get him out of her head" and hasn't stopped calling the One Direction star "despite their romance fizzing out months ago," according to Star magazine.

"Now Kendall desperately wants him back. She loved the attention dating Harry gave her, plus she really fell for him big time," a source says.

"Kendall really opened up to him and he did nothing but use her. That hasn't stopped her from dreaming of a rematch, and after a night out with the girls she'll come home and start calling him.

"Harry rarely takes her calls because he knows when he's pushed his luck when it comes to a woman's heart and Kendall's got it bad for him. He doesn't want to encourage her, but it's turning into an embarrassing situation — for both of them."

Rachel Bilson shows off her baby bump

Rachel Bilson isn't hiding the fact that she and longtime boyfriend Hayden Christensen are expecting. The couple headed to Barbados for a quick vacation, with Bilson showing off her growing baby bump in a black bikini, according to Us Weekly. "They've talked about this for a while and are so excited," a source tells the magazine. "Everyone is beyond thrilled for them."

Manhattan's got a friend in David Schwimmer

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News in New York City

David Schwimmer is one of the Friends I'd vaguely lost track of since the series came to an end. Is he the one playing an aging sitcom star on cable? No, that's Lisa Kudrow. Is he the one who's totally over Brad Pitt? That's Jennifer Aniston. Oh, now I remember. David Schwimmer is the one who battles crime.

Well, he fought for justice this week at least. Police were investigating an altercation between a suspected male prostitute, his john, and a third man that broke out at 5:40 a.m. on East Sixth Street in Manhattan's East Village, where the sitcom star owns a brownstone.

The 26-year-old john was taken to Bellevue Hospital with stab wounds on his face, while the 21-year-old alleged prostitute was treated for slashes on his arm. Police had only one man's word against the other's until they realized that security cameras outside Schwimmer's home had caught footage of the altercation, according to the New York Post. Schwimmer gave the NYPD the tape, which might be used in court.

Schwimmer bought his brownstone for $4 million US in 2012, and he's been heavily renovating it ever since, to the consternation of his neighbours. However, this incident might convince the other Sixth Street residents that good Friends make good neighbours after all.

Macaulay's 'pizza band' too cheesy for British audience

It was a Blues Brothers moment for actor Macaulay Culkin and his band Pizza Underground on Sunday at the Dot to Dot Festival in Nottingham, England, when fans turned on the comedy cover group by booing them and even throwing beer onstage.

Unfortunately, Mac couldn't turn it around with a pizza-themed version of Rawhide to get the crowd going; the Home Alone star and the rest of Pizza Underground allegedly walked off stage smelling like booze after only three songs — but not before they performed a cover of Lou Reed's Perfect Day, calling it Pizza Day.

Culkin's band covers Velvet Underground and Lou Reed songs but changes the lyrics around to be about pizza.

Daniel Radcliffe's battles with alcohol caused by motor disorder

According to a new tell-all book, Harry Potter star Daniel Radcliffe's early battles with alcohol came about because of a debilitating motor disorder, author Randy Jernigan tells Radar Online. "He would go into episodes where he couldn't do anything, even tie his shoes. Daniel felt it held him back in a lot of ways. He didn't feel like a normal kid. He felt lost."

Radcliffe reportedly turned to alcohol to deal with the condition, and things came to a head when he moved into his own place at 17. "He became totally dependent on alcohol," Jernigan says. "He tried to hide his issues behind the drink."

While Radcliffe famously sobered up, he apparently had a relapse while preparing for his first go at the play the Cripple of Inishmaan in London in 2012. "The show took a lot out of him," the author says. "He relapsed because he went back to his old ways of thinking. He felt like he wasn't good enough."

But the star has been clean and sober since the relapse, even as the show has moved to Broadway. Instead of drinking, Radcliffe is now apparently addicted to books. "He has a passion for reading. He reads one book after another," Jernigan explains.

Where the buffalo roam

Yellowstone. This massive, famed park stretches across three states — you need a plan to see it all

You can't miss the bison herds in Yellowstone. ISTOCK

Old Faithful likely comes to mind when you think of Yellowstone National Park. And it's certainly worth seeing, along with other geysers. But the geysers are just the start of what Yellowstone offers: hiking, biking, camping, fishing, wildlife-spotting and more. Yellowstone National Park covers 8,992 square kilometres over three states — Wyoming, Idaho and Montana.

With stops along the way, it can take two full days to drive the 230-kilometre Grand Loop. Here are some Yellowstone basics, starting with the geysers.

Geysers

Most of the park's easily accessible and most famous geysers are concentrated along a 50-kilometre drive in the middle of the park, from West Thumb, Wyo. to Madison Junction, Wyo. and can be seen in a half-day.

Park visitor centres can provide predicted eruption times for about a half-dozen geysers. Some predictions are in windows of several hours, so you'll likely spend some time waiting. Old Faithful erupts every 60 to 90 minutes. The exact timing depends on the previous eruption, so the park can predict only one eruption at a time.

Several other geysers are within walking distance, including the tiny Anemone erupting every 10 minutes or so. A few more clusters of geysers and hot springs are a short drive north along Grand Loop.

If your timing is right, don't miss the Grand Geyser, the tallest predictable geyser in the world, reaching as high as 60 metres and lasting up to 12 minutes. You might have to wait a few hours, though. The Grand Geyser has been erupting every seven or eight hours.

Hikes

The Divide hike is about 5.6 kilometres round trip and takes you to the Continental Divide, the line where water flows toward the Atlantic from one side and toward the Pacific from the other. There's no sign or any other marker at the top, so you'll have to use your imagination. The park rates the hike as moderately strenuous, given the climb of about 225 metres. Mystic Falls is more scenic. The start of the trail is close to the Biscuit Basin cluster of geysers, so you can get geysers and a hike both out of the way with one stop.

Give yourself at least two hours for the drive from the geysers to Mount Washburn. The trail to the top is well-maintained, but the hike isn't for those out of shape: You'll climb some 427 metres to an elevation of 3,122 metres. There are two ways up: The longer route, from Dunraven Pass, is about five kilometres each way, but it's less steep than the Chittenden Road option. Take the same route down; the parking lots for each trailhead are 10 kilometres apart.

In the distance, you can glimpse Yellowstone's version of Grand Canyon, a gorge formed by the Yellowstone River. There's a fire lookout tower with an observation deck at the top.

Grand Canyon

Yellowstone's Grand Canyon is worth its own visit. You have several long or short hikes to choose from, along either side of the canyon. If you're pressed for time, drive to the Upper and Lower Falls and view the rapids before a pair of drops into the canyon. For both falls, use paved overlooks or take short hikes for closer views. Visit the Upper Falls in the afternoon for a chance to see rainbows.

Wildlife and driving

Yellowstone is home to bison, moose, elk, bighorn sheep, wolves and grizzly bears. If you're looking to see a certain type of animal, ask at visitor centres where to go and the best time of day. Cars stopped or parked haphazardly along a road usually means there's something worth seeing. You can't miss the bison herds, but for other creatures, you may need binoculars.

Biking and Boating

You can bike along the Grand Loop on your own bike or by renting one near Old Faithful. There are boating and fishing opportunities as well; permits are required.

Getting there and lodging

The Grand Prismatic Spring in Yellowstone National Park.
JIM PEACO/YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK (FLICKR: YELLOWSTONENPS)

The bulk of the park is in northwest Wyoming and has five entrances, with gateway towns offering food and lodging.

The drive from the entrances to the main loop is long, so plan your access point and lodging carefully. There are nine lodges inside the park; consider switching hotels each night to be closer to another part of the park the next morning.

The park has a dozen campgrounds. Seven are first come, first served. Reservations for the others and for the lodges fill up fast.

Nearest airports with car rentals are in Cody and Jackson, Wyoming; Bozeman, Billings and West Yellowstone, Montana; and Idaho Falls, Idaho. If you have time, it may be cheaper to fly to Denver and drive the 885 kilometres to the park via Cody. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There's no place like home: Workers would rather telecommute than move

Staying on task while staying put. As more employees opt to work remotely, we consider how to do your best from your own nest

SIDNEYEVE MATRIX
TalentEgg.ca

If you're a student, a recent grad, or an entrepreneurial startup type, chances are you're well-versed in working from home, at the library, and in various cafés around town.

In a new study conducted by Ipsos Reid on behalf of the Canadian Employee Relocation Council, researchers found that when it comes to the Canadian employment mobility landscape, more than half of those (55 per cent) who are currently employed would not relocate for a job under any circumstance.

Ask those who consider themselves under-employed and the percentage jumps to 6.5 out of 10. That still leaves a considerable percentage of workers who would greatly prefer to stay put, all things considered.

Recognize what period of your day requires you to have no distractions, and take steps to secure some silence. ISTOCK

Remote (but tethered) workdays

Considering these figures, more employees and their companies may need to consider telecommuting options and using mobile technology and broadband connections to enable distributed (rather than co-located) teams.

Good news, then, that research shows part-time and flexible work-from-home strategies, if properly implemented, can have a positive impact for both businesses and staff.

With funding from the National Institutes of Health and Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, sociologists at the University of Minnesota have published a study showing that increased flexibility at work results in wide-ranging benefits.

Those study participants who were allowed to modify when and where they worked experienced fewer family-work conflicts, achieved greater well-being due to a sense of schedule control, and developed a stronger more supportive relationship with their supervisors.

Set the scene for agile productivity

- When you're mobile and working out-of-home, an extra portable battery charger for tablets and phones is a lifesaver.

Before buying, read the fine print and user reviews to determine whether it will charge your gadget batteries once, twice, or 10 times.

- To work smarter on your smartphone, load it up with time-tracking, list-making, product-managing apps.
- If you're in charge of your own schedule, be sure to determine your optimal working hours, and set clear boundaries (including with family and friends) to protect your personal prime time.
- To manage distractions at home or out-and-about, the combination of a social site blocker and some noise-cancelling headphones will put and keep you in the zone.
- If you're lucky enough to have dedicated office space at home, protect your body from soreness, numbness or strain by doing a little research into economical and ergonomically correct office furnishings.
- For an added productivity boost, paint one wall green. "Seeing greens on surfaces has been linked to thinking creatively," advises design and environmental psychologist Sally Augustin.
- Not ready to paint your walls? Get an office plant instead, to add a touch of greenery to your space, and because research indicates that sharing your desk with foliage or flowers will make you feel happier, too.

Royals get good news from young pitcher's MRI exam

Royals pitcher Yordano Ventura will miss his next start after an MRI exam taken Tuesday on his sore right elbow showed no ligament damage.

Ventura, whose 100 m.p.h. fastballs have made him a rising star, was removed from Monday night's loss to Houston with discomfort in his elbow.

He was diagnosed with a mild valgus extension overload, a condition in which the repetitive stress on the elbow can cause pain in the joint. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NHL playoffs. Chicago looking to get back on winning track with backs against the wall

The special teams have been awful. The faceoff circle has been a huge problem. Patrick Kane, Marian Hossa and Patrick Sharp have combined for one goal for the Chicago Blackhawks.

The defending Stanley Cup champions are in big trouble in the Western Conference final, down 3-1 to the rolling Los Angeles Kings.

But the Blackhawks are back at home for Game 5 on Wednesday night, and have dug out of similar trouble before.

"Just looking to win Game 5," coach Joel Quenneville said after the Blackhawks arrived back in Chicago on Tuesday afternoon. "That's it. Get the momentum back and go from there."

The previous time this series was in Chicago, the Kings seized the momentum with a five-goal third period in a 6-2 victory in Game 2.

It carried right over to a pair of impressive victories in Los Angeles that moved the Kings to the brink of their second Stanley Cup final in three seasons.

Los Angeles has shredded Chicago's penalty-kill unit for five goals in its past 10 chances, while holding the Blackhawks to one power-play goal in their past 11 opportunities. Anze Kopitar and the Kings have won 58 per cent (106 of 184) of the faceoffs during the win streak, taking the puck-possession Blackhawks out of their game.

"We have veteran centremen," coach Darryl Sutter said after Los Angeles' 5-2 victory Monday night. "All four of them have obviously been here for a while. You know, they take care of both ends of the ice. They pretty much run the game for us as centremen." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Raptors doing homework on hometown boy

Toronto native Tyler Ennis is projected to be a lottery pick in the upcoming NBA draft. GETTY IMAGES FILE

The Raptors are going to take a closer look at one of Canada's top NBA prospects.

Toronto native and Syracuse point guard Tyler Ennis is scheduled to work out for the Raptors at the Air Canada Centre on Thursday, as the process of winnowing down a list of options with the 20th choice in the June 26 draft gets serious.

It's a long shot that the six-foot-two Ennis will be available when the Raptors make their pick — he's seen as a virtual lock to go in the lottery portion of the draft — but it never hurts to meet with one of the top local prospects.

Ennis, leaving Syracuse after just one season, met with Toronto officials at the league's draft combine this month and Thursday's individual workout will be another chance to get an up-close look at him.

Toronto also has workouts scheduled for three days next week, with unspecified players who are more likely to be available with the 20th and 37th picks. The Raptors also have the 59th selection, second to last.

With a variety of needs — front-court size and wing depth the most glaring — next week's workouts are seen as far more crucial for the Raptors than an audition for Ennis, who will work out on his own. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Dimes and daggers

Tyler Ennis averaged 12.9 points and 5.5 assists per game in his only season at Syracuse.

Li Na returns a shot against Kristina Mladenovic at the French Open in Paris on Tuesday. CLIVE BRUNSKILL/GETTY IMAGES

Li Na knocked out in first round

French Open. Both winners of last Grand Slam stunned in Paris

Much to her dismay, Li Na is familiar with this feeling.

She earns a Grand Slam championship, is heralded at home, then shows up at subsequent major tournaments and seemingly forgets how to win.

It happened in 2011, after her French Open triumph made her China's first player with a Grand Slam singles title. Happened again Tuesday, when Li was seeded second at Roland Garros but lost to someone ranked 103rd in the first round, not quite four months removed from winning the Australian Open.

"I didn't follow the game plan," Li said. "Didn't have any idea how to play."

Her 7-5, 3-6, 6-1 exit against Kristina Mladenovic of France in front a partisan crowd on a cloudy, windy Day 3 came about 16 hours after the men's Australian Open champion, third-seeded Stan Wawrinka, was beaten in Paris — making this French Open already unlike any Grand Slam tournament in history.

It's the first time that the men's and women's singles champions from the previous major lost in the first round.

"Nobody says if you (are) No. 2 in the world, you have to win all the matches. I mean, this is tennis," said Li.

- Wozniak wasted a match point in her 6-7 (3), 7-5, 6-2 first-round loss to Romania's Sorana Cirstea.
- Toronto's Fichman lost to sixth seed Jelena Jankovic 5-7, 6-1, 6-3.

Canada extends winless streak

The Canadian men's soccer team is still looking for an elusive win, but for now, a pair of draws against European opponents is progress enough for head coach Benito Floro.

Canada played to its second-straight 1-1 draw Tuesday, coming from behind to tie Moldova in a friendly. Canada also tied Bulgaria 1-1 in a friendly last week.

Tuesday's result means Canada's 16-game winless streak under Floro's leadership that dates back to October 2012 remains intact. THE CANADIAN PRESS

World Cup. TFC and Brazil goalkeeper Cesar returns home four years wiser

Brazil goalkeeper Julio Cesar said Tuesday he arrives for the World Cup at home a lot more prepared than he was four years ago, when his mistake played a part in the team's elimination in South Africa.

Cesar said the difficulties he went through after the 2010 World Cup helped him become "a better professional" and made him "more focused" on his career.

He admitted that he took things for granted before the World Cup in South Africa, when he arrived considered the world's top goalkeeper.

Julio Cesar GETTY IMAGES

The 34-year-old Cesar said he joined Toronto FC because it was the only team that wanted him, but said his preparations were not affected by playing in a less-traditional league. He called his time with Toronto "excellent" and said he is "100 per cent" ready.

"I arrive a lot more prepared than I was four years ago," Cesar said at Brazil's training centre in Teresopolis, outside Rio de Janeiro. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

2014 Kia Rondo

- Type. Four-door, front-wheel drive compact 5 or 7-passenger wagon
- Engines (hp). 2.0-litre inline four-cylinder with direct gasoline engine (164)
- Transmissions. Six-speed manual, six-speed automatic
- Base price (incl. destination). $23,460

Market position

Despite the popularity of larger crossover vehicles, these tall hatchbacks offer an excellent alternative for those who prefer a compact vehicle. The Rondo's features and quiet ride make it a standout in the category.

Points

- 5-year/100,000 km warranty covers almost everything on the Rondo, while wear items such as wiper blades and brake pads have 1-year/20,000 km coverage.
- Completely redesigned for 2013, the Rondo is currently offered in Canada, but no longer in the United States.
- Fuel consumption of 9.2 L/100 km city and 6.3 highway (with automatic transmission) is best among its direct competitors.

As a hatchback, the Rondo comes with a spacious back end.

Safety

Front, side, and curtain airbags; brake assist and distribution; hill assist control; vehicle stability control; rear view camera and parking sensors on EX trims.

Rondo is a great family choice

Review. The Kia Rondo is a smooth-riding option to accommodate the whole clan

JIL MCINTOSH
wheelbasemedia.com

I've always been fond of the so-called "tall wagon," a hatchback that combines the upright seating and practicality of a minivan or SUV, but with the compact footprint of a small car. The Kia Rondo fits the bill, in five-passenger seating, or with an optional third row for seven people.

There are three trim levels, and all use a 2.0-litre, four-cylinder engine that makes 164 horsepower, and 156 lb.-ft. of torque. The base LX trim starts at $21,795 and comes with a six-speed manual transmission, but it's there for price, not sportiness. Most buyers will opt for the smooth-shifting six-speed automatic, optional on the LX, and the only choice on the EX and EX Luxury trims.

The Rondo is spacious and comfortable, while the top-of-the-line seven-seat trim level includes such features as parking sensors, panoramic sunroof, and heated and cooled leather seats for $30,795, with navigation further available as an option.

It isn't the most fun-to-drive car on the market, but the ride is smooth, and it handles corners without feeling tippy despite its height. It's also confident and well-planted on the highway, and you can switch the electric power steering to feel lighter or more weighted, depending on your preference. It's also very quiet, thanks to a considerable amount of sound-deadening material, and visibility is excellent all the way around.

The 2014 Kia Rondo offers an intelligent alternative to an SUV for families.

Kia put a lot of thought into the interior, with numerous little items to make life easier for families. The EX models have integrated rear-window sunshades, eliminating the need to use suction-cup versions to protect children from the sun, and there's a rechargeable flashlight in the cargo area. If you get the five-seat model, there's a large, covered storage bin under the cargo floor.

As with most tall wagons, it's easy to get in and out, especially for children or elderly passengers. The third-row's seats are nicely cushioned, but there's really only enough space for children.

Good-looking and thoughtfully engineered, the Rondo could well be a practical alternative to an SUV for many families.

Compare

1 Mazda5
Base price: $21,995
Rondo's closest competitor offers sportier handling, and seating for six.

2 Chevrolet Orlando
Base price: $20,195 Standard three rows and more powerful, but it's thirstier.

3 Dodge Journey
Base price: $21,495
Larger but still well-sized, and available with all-wheel drive.

Comedians in Cars Getting Coffee guest stars and their on-air wheels

Howard Stern
1969 Pontiac GTO Judge

The badass showy muscle car with hideaway headlights, a blacked out grille and a take-no-prisoners four barrel 370 hp V8 is a fitting chariot for the shock jock/America's Got Talent hotshot.

Its "All Rise" mentality suits the randy radio host to a tee; the only thing Seinfeld messed up was the colour. A starlight black version would have been a better fit than the vivid citrus orange, but at least it's got a black leather interior.

Louis C.K.
1959 Fiat Jolly

Jolly translates to "Joker" in Italian and you certainly need a sense of whimsy to take this doorless leisure buggy with wicker seats and a two-cylinder 22 hp engine for a spin. They were actually marketed as a glamorous golf cart or yachting shore rider for when in port.

The excruciatingly honest comedian who writes/acts/stars in FX's Louie can't help but take potshots at the car that is the same shade of orange as his goatee. After remarking that he can drag his knuckles on the street while they drive, he notes, "It's funny because people are right there, there's a bicyclist and my face is at his ass level." Schtick aside, C.K.'s ties to the Jolly go beyond colour matching: he is actually a yacht guy and he takes Seinfeld for a cruise on the Hudson River.

Jay Leno
1949 Porsche 356/2

One of the first production cars the company produced, this stunning Porsche was built using mostly Volkswagon parts. The aluminum body was hand-hammered in a sawmill in Gmünd, Austria and the interior came decked out with plush corduroy upholstery.

The rare classic is as regal as the ex-Tonight Show host's chin and only 52 were ever made. "I love it because to me it looks like a little alien flying saucer," Jerry quips, talking about the Porsche, not his passenger's plus-sized mandible.

Patton Oswalt
1981 DeLorean DMC-12

The DeLorean is the Dontrelle Willis of automobiles: It came out with a flash bang, but flamed out so fast you can't help but wonder what could have been. Known for its starring turn as the time machine in Back to the Future, the gull-wing doors and unpainted stainless steel body certainly looked the part.

Performance-wise though, it left a lot to be desired, and on the episode it barely leaves Oswalt's curb before breaking down with smoke billowing out of the engine echoing Oswalt's start and stall career. But the endearing and persevering comic who voiced Remy on Ratatouille is also an early tech adopter, saving the comedians' coffee run by hailing a ride with Uber.

Bob Einstein
1970 Mercedes 300SEL 6.3

The bold stroke of genius here was to take a massive, powerful, luxe limo engine, a V8 cranking out 300-hp, and figure out how to cram it into a much smaller and lighter S-class to turn it into a super sedan.

This is exactly the kind of shenanigan that Einstein's character Super Dave Osborne, the world's foremost faux daredevil, would pull if he were to engineer a car. Of course the end result would be that same engine falling through the subframe and bonking him on his head.

Grand Caravan ready for family fun

Second gear. 2008 to 2014 Dodge Grand Caravan

drive@metronews.ca

The Dodge Grand Caravan entered its current generation for 2008, riding a sole long-wheelbase platform and packing new power, features and safety. Virtually unbeatable where size and passenger capacity for the money was concerned, the latest Grand Caravan continues its decades-long history as a best-selling family hauler.

Feature content, depending on the year and model, could include power sliding doors and liftgate, navigation, back-up camera, power-folding rear seats, rear-seat entertainment consoles, a pop-up activity table and plenty more.

CONTRIBUTED

The test drive

Some owners have reported a shorter-than-expected lifespan for various brake and suspension components, as well as tires. Be sure to have each of these inspected by a mechanic ahead of your purchase.

Note that squealing from the front of the vehicle typically indicates that a brake job is needed, and that any unwelcome clunking or popping sounds from beneath the vehicle are likely the result of a worn suspension part. Wheel bearings on older models should also be inspected.

Triple-check for proper operation of the air conditioner, and the rear-seat climate control system, too.

Be sure the transmission operates smoothly — and that it's been treated to on-time fluid and filter changes, avoiding any model that exhibits signs of slippage, clunking or unwanted noise from the transmission during gear-changes.

Budget for a full mechanical inspection ahead of your purchase, and complete a full fluid change and tune-up if the vehicle's service history is unknown.

Ensure the motorized doors and tailgate (if equipped) work as expected — opening and closing fully with no signs of resistance. Locate every button used to open each sliding door, confirming proper operation. Note that proper lubrication of the door tracks and chain drive on motorized motors can go a long way towards reliable operation.

What owners like

Space, comfort, noise levels and all-around utility and flexibility were highly rated by owners and their families. A great combination of affordable pricing and generous room helped round out the package. Grand Caravan is said to be accommodating.

Engines

All units in this generation Grand Caravan were powered by a V6 engine and equipped with an automatic transmission and front-wheel drive. Displacements range from 3.3 to 4.0 litres depending on the year and model. From 2012 on, all models got a new 3.6 litre V6.

What owners dislike

Typical owner complaints centre around poor fuel mileage on some models, cumbersome handling, and difficulty parking, given the vehicle's length.

The verdict

For maximum confidence from your new-to-you family hauler, stop in to a Dodge dealership with your potential new Grand Caravan for a pre-purchase inspection. With a clean bill of health and no warning signs of potential issues, you're well on your way to joining the huge community of Dodge Grand Caravan owners. Note that a 2012 or later model will boast superior performance and fuel efficiency, thanks to the new engine and transmission combination.

Spanish brand Bultaco bets on all-electric model

Rapitan. Bike's battery has range of up to 200 kilometres per charge

The Spanish motorcycle manufacturer Bultaco, which went out of business in the early 1980s, is back in the news following the introduction of the Rapitan, a new all-electric ride slated to go on sale in 2015.

The news echoes the spectacular return of the French brand Voxan last December with its Wattman, which is also due to hit the market in 2015.

In the hopes of resurrecting the Bultaco name, the successors to founder Paco Bulto are focusing their efforts on an all-electric model. The Rapitan packs an electric motor with 40 kW, or the equivalent of 55 hp. While its top speed is limited to 145 km/h, the manufacturer says the motorcycle can accelerate from 0 to 100 km/h in a mere four seconds.

The battery, which recharges fully in less than five hours, has a range of up to 200 km per charge. Presented as a prototype, the Bultaco Rapitan is scheduled to hit the market in 2015.

This is not the first time that a brand has risen from its ashes with an all-electric motorcycle. In December 2013, French manufacturer Voxan, which was liquidated in 2009 and purchased by Venturi in 2010, returned to the scene with the Wattman, an all-electric motorcycle symbolizing its rebirth.

Powered by an engine with 200 hp — making it the world's most powerful electric motorcycle, according to Voxan — the Wattman boasts a top speed of 170 km/h, 0 to 100 km/h acceleration in just 3.4 seconds and 0 to 160 km/h in 5.9 seconds. The battery offers a range of around 180 km. Like the Rapitan, this powerful all-electric ride will not go on sale to the public until 2015. AFP

The Spanish motorcycle maker Bultaco is hoping to make a comeback with the Rapitan, an all-electric road bike. BULTACO

Keeping cool this summer

Hot rides. Simple maintenance can help keep things cool on the road this summer. Your vehicle, and riders, will thank you.

JUSTIN PRITCHARD

For us humans, the hot weather is one of the most eagerly anticipated parts of the summer season — but for our vehicles, that lovely heat means additional strain on vital components every time we hit the road with the family.

Poorly maintained parts tend to show themselves when vehicles are pushed to extremes.

As such, a sweltering summer day is a fantastic time for overheating, driveline failure or engine damage, if your cooling system isn't performing properly. Fortunately, readying your cooling system for warm-weather travelling is a relatively quick and painless endeavour.

In addition to keeping your engine running at its ideal operating temperature, your cooling system may play a part in keeping other components, like your transmission, from overheating as well.

Your cooling system works by circulating coolant throughout the engine to absorb and remove the tremendous heat generated by its operation.

Over time, the effectiveness of that coolant diminishes, and a coolant change is required.

This occurs in varying intervals for different vehicles, or on an 'as-needed' basis as advised by your mechanic.

A proper cooling system check should include a look at coolant level and effectiveness, the thermostat and the water-pump belt, if applicable.

The radiator and associated hoses and lines should be inspected as well, and a visual check for leaks is also important. A periodic radiator flush is also advisable to remove harmful sludge from within the cooling system. Sludge may accumulate within the radiator and hoses over time, reducing effectiveness and component life.

Put another way, a coolant flush ensures everything is functioning properly, from the inside out.

Protecting your engine from the heat this summer is only half the battle. You'll want to ensure you and your passengers benefit from an effective air conditioning system, too.

If your AC seems hesitant to blow cold, or if it isn't cooling the cabin as quickly as it used to, an inspection is in order. This inspection can often reveal a small problem before it escalates into a much larger and pricier one.

If you're uncomfortable performing vehicle-related work yourself, your favourite mechanic would be happy to help.

Most cooling and air-conditioning maintenance can be carried out quickly the next time your vehicle is in the shop for an oil-change or tune up.

Need a parking spot? You won't find one in the newest condo building

Change in car culture. 42-storey condo first in Toronto to go "no parking," leading national trend

AUTO PILOT
Mike Goetz
drive@metronews.ca

Another mile marker on the way to big change in automotive culture is a new and soaring 42-floor condominium structure on University Avenue in Toronto.

It offers lots of amenities, a nice selection of counter tops and bathroom tile, a snazzy foyer, but nothing resembling a parking garage.

There are only nine parking spots and those are reserved for a car-share program.

It might be the first new-build condominium in the country to offer "no parking" for all, but it won't be the last.

Municipalities have always enacted bylaws that stipulate how much parking had to be included in new developments. In downtown Toronto, for example, the requirement is 0.6 parking spots per unit. In other areas it could be as high as two spots per unit.

But the pressure is on to get rid of these parking requirements.

To go "no parking," this Toronto condo had to receive special approval from city council. In Calgary, officials are seriously considering green-lighting a condo tower with similar car-free ideals. And in Vancouver, they are moving toward new zoning that would allow developers to make their own calls about whether or not to put parking stalls in their buildings.

"This is the way we're headed," says Christopher Hume, the Toronto Star's architecture and urban affairs critic. "The people who live in these condos don't need or want a car. They choose these apartments and neighbourhoods so they don't have to go through the whole hassle of buying and operating a car."

Like we spoke about previously in this space, there is a young demographic out there which does not share the previous generations' drive for car ownership and car culture. That mindset is now making an impact on building design.

Throw in the growing popularity of such things as car sharing, Uber taxi, bicycling, and the pressure of land use in the city, and it's not hard to see why parking garages might become rarities in more and more urban neighbourhoods in the coming years. Hume adds that architects in the city are even contemplating a future where current underground garages might be re-purposed for other activities, such as studio space and light manufacturing.

As they are currently, parking garages are awful spaces.

Usually I feel nostalgic about anything car related going away. But a dank, filthy, underused underground garage somewhere downtown is not one of them. And I would say that even if I didn't get routinely lost in them. Just for the record, I think "exit" should mean "exit," and not, "go around in a circle a few more times, than try a left ... or right."

A new condo tower in Toronto contains no parking spaces. MIKE GOETZ

Do you know why a mortgage document is so big?

It's because there's a lot more in it than just the rate.

Why lowest isn't always best.

Don't get us wrong. A low rate is great. But most low rate mortgages come with restrictive terms that could keep you in your mortgage longer than you'd like. Which means paying interest longer than you'd like. So, instead of thinking about the cost of your mortgage in rate terms, think about it in dollar terms. For example, how much interest will you pay over the life of your mortgage?

How restrictive terms cost you in the end.

The key to saving interest costs is having the flexibility to increase payments or make extra payments. With rates as low as they are, regular lump sum and increased payments will save you more interest over the life of your mortgage. Even more than switching to bi-weekly payments![†]

Good advice is worth its weight in gold.

Locking in at today's low rates might be right for you. But keep in mind that small changes can make a big difference in helping you become mortgage-free faster so keeping that flexibility is essential.

So how can we offer a rate this low with the benefits you want?

Since we refuse to overload our mortgages with restrictions and we insist on giving people competitively low rates, the only way we can do it is for a limited time.

SPECIAL OFFER MORTGAGE RATE

* All mortgages are subject to applicable credit approval, Scotiabank residential mortgage standards and maximum permitted loan amounts. Scotiabank 5-Year Fixed Rate Special – The new mortgage must be set up as a 5-year closed term fixed rate mortgage at a rate of 2.97%. As of May 22nd, 2014, if there are no 'cost of borrowing' charges (for example, appraisal fees), the APR for the rate of 2.97% equals 2.95% (compounded semi-annually, not in advance). Where a typical appraisal fee of $300 is assumed (actual appraisal fees may vary), the APR equals 3.02% (compounded semi-annually, not in advance), for a term of 5 years – assuming a mortgage of $100,000 with a 25-year amortization. Scotia Flex Value*® Mortgage Special – Scotiabank Prime as of September 9, 2010 was 3.00%. As of May 22nd, 2014, the Scotia Flex Value® Mortgage – Closed 5 Year Term was 2.47%. If there are no 'cost of borrowing' charges (for example, appraisal fees), the APR for the rate of 2.47% equals 2.46% (compounded semi-annually, not in advance). Where a typical appraisal fee of $300 is assumed (actual appraisal fees may vary), the APR equals 2.52% (compounded semi-annually, not in advance), for a term of 5 years – assuming a mortgage of $100,000 with a 25-year amortization. The Scotia Flex Value® Mortgage interest rate varies with Scotiabank Prime.
These offers expire June 7th, 2014 but are subject to change or withdrawal at any time. The mortgage must be funded within 90 days of the application date. Other conditions may apply.

† Assuming a mortgage of $270,000 with a 25-year amortization at a rate of 2.97%, switching to bi-weekly payments will decrease your amortization to less than 23 years and save you approximately $14,130 in interest. Alternatively, assuming the same mortgage of $270,000 with a 25-year amortization at a rate of 2.97%, if you keep your monthly payment frequency but apply annual lump sum prepayments of $500 and increase your regular payments by just $20 every year, after your first year, you will decrease your amortization to less than 21 years and save approximately $18,923 in interest.
